American Council On Soviet Relations

112 EAST NINETEENTH STREET · NEW YORK CITY · GRAMERCY 7-6123

December 13th, 1941

Dear Friend:

In this most solemn moment our country has ever faced, all Americans must unite in unswerving support of our Government in its mighty task. That task is to fight the war against Germany, Italy, and Japan to a victorious end, and thus restore liberty and peace to mankind. All of us must in our own way give all our effort, all our strength, our lives if need be, in this common struggle.

Some of us will be directly in the struggle, whether in battle, in home defense, or in production. Others will have important tasks in the field of strengthening national morale and unity. Just as the unity and coordinated effort of all our people are vital for winning the war, so unity and coordinated effort among all the democratic nations now together engaged in fighting the Axis powers, are essential for victory.

A great contribution toward this national and international unity is the clearing up of confusions about the Soviet Union spread by years of a hostile, appeaser-sponsored, anti-Soviet campaign. The purpose of this campaign has been to spread wide confusion, defeatism and disunity among millions of uninformed people. This campaign continues to be as much a weapon of Hitler as his tanks, his machine guns, his Messerschmidts.

President Roosevelt has said, "the defense of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is vital to the defense of the United States," and in his great message to the people following our declaration of war on Japan, proclaimed "a successful Russian offensive against the Germans helps us." Both President Roosevelt and Ambassador Litvinoff, in their recent exchange of notes, emphasized that "...the successful and speedy outcome of this struggle will depend largely upon the extent to which the countries opposing aggression are willing to coordinate their activities, to use their resources in a timely and rational manner, and to maintain among themselves full understanding and confidence."

The seeds of misunderstanding and suspicion have been carefully sown by enemy forces. To bring "full understanding and confidence" to all sections of our people remains an urgent task today -- and it is the job of this Council. The basis for genuine, enduring confidence comes not from momentary acceptance of a slogan -- but from basic understanding of the bonds which unite our beloved America and the great Soviet people and all freedom-loving forces throughout the world, joined now together to smash fascism in our time and for all time.
